PRESS RELEASE

Analytical Environmental Services merges with Mooney Planning Collaborative

Brian F. Mooney, David Zweig

San Diego, California, September 20, 2011: Analytical Environmental Services (AES), a Sacramento based multi-disciplined environmental services consulting firm focusing on the implementation of the California Environmental Quality Act and National Environmental Policy Act, has merged with Mooney Planning Collaborative, a San Diego based community and environmental planning firm, and has opened a joint San Diego office to service clients throughout Southern California. The San Diego office will be led by Brian F. Mooney, AICP. The AES/Mooney collaboration embodies excellence and dedication in meeting local needs by way of cementing strong client relationships and offering exceptional environmental and community planning services throughout the region. The staff of their combined team specializes in a myriad of scientific and urban planning disciplines including biology, geology, hydrology, toxicology, cultural resources, air quality, socioeconomics, noise, land use planning, urban design, graphic design, and geographic information systems.

Brian and David Zweig, PE, President of AES, share a common history paved with past accomplishments and successful relationships with clients throughout northern and southern California. Currently AES is completing environmental studies for numerous Native American Tribes in San Diego, Imperial, Riverside, and Santa Barbara counties. Brian has completed numerous high profile planning and environmental studies including programs for the Cities of San Diego, Solana Beach, Del Mar, Lemon Grove, El Centro, Calexico, and the Counties of San Diego and Imperial.

David Zweig commented, "We have been looking at building up our southern California presence to better serve our growing client base and Brian's group allows us to bring that goal to fruition". According to Brian Mooney, "AES allows our team to continue with a philosophy of providing an integrated planning approach which starts from a strong environmental technical base. Those technical skills added to our existing city and town planning programs will allow AES/Mooney to successfully develop communities that respect and celebrate the environment in a truly sustainable design".

Together, AES/Mooney will integrate their strengths to meet competitive challenges in our present, ever-changing region. The combined AES/Mooney firm shares a common vision of the future, one rooted in integrity and innovation to serve existing and new clients in Southern California. The depth of expertise of their combined staff, their strong client relationships, and their creative solutions for place making and environmental compliance needs, make the alliance of AES/Mooney fully equipped to meet the future.

The new AES/Mooney office is located in the historic Marston Building at 427 C Street, Suite 407 in downtown San Diego.
